PREFACE.

A VERY few words will suffice for Preface to this our First Volume. Our exertions have found such favour with the public, that we may honestly congratulate ourselves on having been thoroughly successful; a result in these days of universal competition frequently boasted of, but not frequently obtained. We attribute our good fortune to the fact that, while we have given to the public a creditable article so far as the external appearance of the Magazine is concerned, we have conscientiously held to our programme. In our Prospectus we said, 'Our aim will be essentially amusement, though topics of current interest will occasionally be treated by competent writers.' The articles on Fenianism and the feeling of America towards England, by the American Fenian, already published, and the reply by Miss Frances Power Cobbe, to appear in our February Number, will show that we have not been neglectful of the latter portion of our promise.

One word in regard to the article on Paris Fashions. The demand upon our space has so increased as to render it impossible for us to give the Fashions' article every month. It will, however, find a place from time to time, whenever our Paris contributor sees anything worthy of notice; and the Magazine will never be without one special article for lady-readers, such as the Grotesque Jewellery in the January Number.
